Now, ...: Ramblings Fron The Old Derelict Bowhunter

Synopsis

Your Purchase of Now, I Helps Support Our Wounded Service Members. 100% of the author's profits from sales of Now, I go to Fisher House Foundation, a charitable organization that provides assistance to the families of severely wounded warriors, so that the family members can be with their loved ones during their period of recovery. More than just a Fireside book, Now, I is an amazing 350 pages of bowhunting and æbush-bumming how-to, knowledge and lore, sprinkled with humor and bowhunting insights, told as only the Old Derelict can! Drawn from over 50 years of worldwide bowhunting experience these articles, written anonymously for over a decade for Archery Action, in Australia, are selected stories by Dr. Ed Ashby. They covers everything from his misadventure with Montezuma Beans and Six-Can-Stew to shoe selection for stalking, how to track game, how to practice for hunting shots, how to stalk, what skills define the successful hunter, making and using predator calls, why we miss shots at game and much, much more. Learn how an archer never known for his shooting ability became one of the world's most successful bowhunters. Best known for his technical writings on terminal arrow performance, here the reader meets Dr. Ashby's plain-spoken alternate persona – the Old Derelict Bowhunter.

"Shoot'n ain't the same as Hunt'n" sort of sums up the book. It is mostly about bow hunting, but also much more. It is informative, engaging, sometimes philosophical and is richly interspersed with light-hearted humor and even poetry. It is presented in a way to make one feel that you are sitting around a campfire with someone to whom you know that you should listen, and listen well. And the lessons apply not just to bow hunters but to all of us who wander the outdoors with or without bows, rifles, fishing poles, cameras, and the like. A worthwhile read, AND 100% of the profits go to The Fisher House Foundation, helping families of seriously wounded soldiers!

This is probably one of the most entertaining yet informative books I've ever had the pleasure of reading. The stories are entertaining, but they always have a lesson intertwined somewhere. Ashby is a very intelligent man, and his testing and studies for bow hunting and arrow lethality are phenomenal. You won't find as much technical jargon in this book though, it's more about the how and why without being too heady.

Dr. Ed not only talks about bow hunting, he does it with a delightful style and lots of humor. Buried in the pages are some real good tips on how-to. If you enjoy the outdoors you will enjoy this book. All the profits go to the Fisher House foundation in support of our wounded vets and their families. Well done--EdSemper FiMike
