Lord Edward, Duke of Kent, is everything most girls could want in a husband, handsome, titled, and with a bright future ahead of him. However, many of the ton also know that his past is checkered, with rumors of a stilted lover and an illegitimate child clouding his chance for a marriageable future with a noble girl. He has long since decided to marry only for love though, so their opinions matter little to him until he meets a beautiful woman named Scarlett, sister of the Duke of Bellingham, and is carried away by her brazen lack of propriety when it comes to society's rules. Lord Edward is willing to expose everything about his own past in order to marry the woman he loves, but must decide whether he's willing to risk losing her heart when she knows the truth. Can Duke of Kent expose his past and win the respect of the outspoken merchant's daughter, or will the Duke of Bellingham's own buffoon stepbrother be given the beautiful maiden's hand in marriage instead?

Scarlett is sent to live with her eldest brother and his wife for The Season. The Duke and Duchess of Bellingham are tasked with making certain Scarlett marries at least a Duke. With the sizable dowry from her successful, merchant father, the Duke of Bellingham is certain she could have her choice of any titled man to marry. Scarlett's eldest brother is a half-brother 15 years older than she - almost a stranger as she was only 4 years old when he left to take on the responsibility as heir. Both he and his wife are both so sober and serious she doubts they've ever smiled. So unlike her beloved half-brother, Henry Fitzwilliam and she has to be introduced into society and make a proper marriage with someone they've already chosen? After her Brother formally introduced her, she was cornered into dancing with Lord Gavin Stuart Earl of Milford. Not just for a dance, but a whole set. He was every bit as dull, and perhaps even slow, as her friend Ettie had said. After they finished their set, Scarlett made an excuse to get away and went outside on the balcony. A gentleman's voice asked what she was running from? She eventually told him the whole story and he offered a bit of sage wisdom and thereafter, took his leave to go back inside. Ettie inquired as to her whereabouts, to which Scarlett explained and Ettie was determined to find the gentleman as Scarlett forgot to get his name. Believe it or not, the handsome gentleman she pointed out turned out to be Ettie's brother. Scarlett and Edward, the Duke of Kent, danced and talked with ease. Before they were aware, they had danced the remainder of the ball together much to her brother's dismay. Edward asks Scarlett if he may call on her, Scarlett states she would like that.
